

SAIER GROUP

Location of ideas

Since our company was founded back in 1953, we have combined the innovative ideas and commitment of our employees with an open corporate culture, one very keen on investment and willing to embrace change. From this, a significant manufacturer of industrial packaging for Germany and Europe has evolved, as well as a value-oriented family-owned business committed to long-term thinking, comprising the companies of SAIER Verpackungstechnik, GFV Verschlussstechnik, E+E Verpackungstechnik and SAIER Management.

Packaging for perfectionists

You can depend on our packaging!
This not only applies to the handling and presentation of our products in a vast array of industrial and distribution environments and logistics processes. It is also true of its end-user applications. We listen to the various professionals in our delivery chains very carefully, and do our utmost to heed what they say in order to prepare and implement the requirements today for the perfect industrial packaging of tomorrow.

The packaging perfectionists

We are a high-volume manufacturing business. Nonetheless, faults in a single item of packaging can cause major problems for our customers and for ourselves. We therefore consider that every single one of our products should bear our quality emblem. To achieve this, we set up our production processes uncompromisingly to produce the closest to perfection possible, creating products within the tightest of tolerances feasible. The quality level developed through this approach, one that we seek continuously to improve, builds confidence in our products and constitutes a sound basis for enduring customer relationships.

Problem-solver - from draft to volume production readiness

For the most part, we develop, produce and sell customer-independent forms of packaging that we offer in the form of standard product ranges. Our group of companies currently offers more than 330 forms of standard packaging in over 7,000 versions. In our business sector, this is one of the broadest and most innovative portfolios of plastic packaging materials on the market. Our many different ranges of packaging materials are designed to enable you to put together homogeneous product families within the context of familiar market requirements, and through the use of numerous options to enable you to adapt them to suit different situations in downstream delivery chains. Our product ranges are subject to continuous adaptation and further development.
Furthermore, if the standards available on the market do not meet your requirements, or if you are looking for something special, you have also come to the right address in choosing us! As a forum for great ideas, we can guide you in structured processes, from development to finished volume product, creating entirely bespoke products to meet your personal needs. To accomplish this, we can at any time call on the expertise of all areas within our group of companies and can also draw down on the most versatile range of different production technologies, product specialities and specialist processes in our sector of industry. As a consequence, our customers have long recognised and valued our skills as a problem solver.

Working with and learning from perfectionists

For more than seven decades, our companies in Alpirsbach and Jettingen have been a secure and highly regarded employer in the region. We currently employ about 400 people and we are committed as a business to the provision of training and apprenticeships in industrial and commercial vocations.
As a family-owned business, alongside a balanced age structure, we place emphasis on long-term partnerships. In this, we encourage open and fair relations with one another, an environment in which careers can develop to maturity. We believe that work should be properly remunerated, and also that it should be enjoyable. This is why we foster a dynamic, creative, team-oriented working environment in ultra-modern production facilities with a flat organisational structure.
To accomplish this, the SAIER Group seeks always to recruit technical staff who are on the same wavelength as ourselves, who wish to experience tangible progress in all respects. In many cases, we also train talented young people in our own companies. Right from the start of the courses we provide, we place great emphasis on the provision of above-average technical skills training. We also encourage a willingness to demonstrate commitment, to work in a team, and to think in terms of quality, reliability, cleanliness and cost-effectiveness. Our experienced team of trainers always takes great delight in providing support and mentoring to interested and talented young people during their practical training courses.
